A RESOLUTION AGREED TO.

There have been few instances in which public opinion, at one time divided and uncertain, has so promptly come to almost universal agreement as in the present question, what shall be done with the slaves of rebels. The agreement is on the point that these slaves shall be immediately, freely, and effectively used to put down the rebellion. As to the mode of using them, that is quite another question. In some places it may be advisable to train them in arms, in others to put them to the labor of the camp, in others to simply order them to the rear, saving at once and finally the relation they hold to the estates and fixed property of their rebel masters. In all cases, however, they are hereafter to be treated as actively contraband of war, not passively contraband merely. They are as clearly capable of being made offensive agents as are guns and military stores. Why, then, shall there be hesitation as to their use? Why shall doubts exist as to the duty of those who have the lives of our citizen soldiers to care for? Hall the entire routine of military appliances, guns and defensive works included, are intended for the protection of our soldiers' lives while engaged in offensive warfare. Why shall not the effective force of slaves on a hundred rebel plantations be employed in saving life in any district the army may enter?

It ought still to be considered that this conclusion is a military one only. Other questions will come up, and their decision will be demanded in due time, but it is unnecessary to complicate this one with them. Duty, as well as war policy apart from duty, demands precisely what it is now so generally agreed without financial ruin; to end it without heaping the soil of the south with our dead and theirs; to attain the great end which is so essential to the future peace and prosperity of every State and every honest citizen of the whole Union it has become necessary to take a stand more decisive than any yet taken. There can be no mistake as to the opinions and purposes of the people in general, none, we believe, as to the present feeling of the soldiers and officers of the army. If there are differences yet remaining anywhere, they must give way before the overwhelming necessity that presses on the responsible conductors of the government.

The end toward which the energies of the people and the government are directed is not a narrow or partisan one, not one in which the best interests of one section are more bound up than the interests of any other. The whole of the rebel States included, what means have become necessary to attain that end? What are the chief obstacles to its attainment? The people have been painfully pressed by these questions for many months, and it has sometimes appeared that the sky grew darker and darker because no adequate means had been adopted in prosecuting the war for the Union. It is now practically agreed that new and further efforts must be made, that more thorough and decisive agencies must be invoked to settle this controversy without bringing absolute ruin on the parties to it.

General Mitchell.—The Washington correspondent of the New York Times says, that the charges against General Mitchell, made by the Cincinnati Commercial and General Mitchell himself, when his attention was called to it, expressed the greatest surprise, and said that he was totally unconscious of ever having done any injury to any one in his life. The Washington correspondent of the New York Times asserts that charges have been made at Washington against General Mitchell.

Mr. Charles Dickens is about to visit this country to see what he can see, and give dramatic readings from his own works. Adams, the great tragedian, is also engaged to perform during the fall season in this country.

SENATOR SIMMONS—RICH DEVELOPMENTS.—In the course of the trial now progressing before the U. S. Circuit Court, in this city, in which John Norris seeks to recover for services alleged to have been rendered the Providence Tool Company, in negotiating a contract with the U. S. Government for the manufacture of muskets, the following significant facts were elicited and sworn to. The Treasurer of the Company, John B. Anthony, Esq., was placed upon the stand, and testified that the Company had a contract with the Government to manufacture 25,000 muskets, negotiated by the assistance of Senator Simmons, and several others, among whom was Senator Anthony, simply as was supposed out of a friendly desire on the part of those gentlemen to help their friends. There was not the slightest bargain made with any of them in reference to any remuneration for any assistance rendered.

Mr. Anthony further testified that after the contract was negotiated Senator Simmons met him, and remarked that the Company ought to make him a handsome present for that contract. Mr. Anthony thought the Senator was jesting at first, and paid but little attention to the matter. Soon, however, being waylaid again to the same purpose, Mr. Anthony, "said that he was not authorized to do any such thing, and could not do it. Senator Simmons then went to work upon the directors, and whenever he met any of them insisted that the company were in his debt, and claimed the specified sum of five thousand dollars. But they all and always repudiated his claim. He further testified that the first contract, (the one for which Senator Simmons claimed a bonus) was unprofitable, because the machinery necessary to manufacture the muskets cost much more than anticipated, and so much as to render the contract an unprofitable one. That the fact made the Company very anxious to negotiate a second contract, by which they could be reimbursed for losses on the first contract. Senator Simmons was aware of this fact, and after trying the button-hole process on the Treasurer and Directors with indifferent success, he concluded to enter upon a little "sharp practice" by trading on the Company's earnings. So whenever he met the Treasurer or the directors, he intimated that if they wanted his influence in negotiating a second contract, they must come down with a cool five thousand. And that finally, Senator Simmons being about to engage in some business speculations, told him, the witness, that he needed the money, and if they would not give it to him, they must lend it to him, or he would not only not lend them his influence in negotiating a second contract, but would use it against them. This had the desired effect, and Mr. Anthony authorized Senator Simmons to draw on him for five thousand and the books of the Company, and that afterwards, upon request of Senator Simmons, his note as evidence and security for the money loaned, he was treated by the Senator with a very discreet silence. But "to give the devil his due," we must add, that the Company succeeded in negotiating a second and more profitable contract with the Government, and that Senator Simmons did assist them by his influence with the Government, and did, like Oliver Twist, ask for more money, and kept asking for more, which he did not get.—O, Tempora! O, Mores!

ARTICLES GIVEN AND WHO GIVES THEM.—The following list will exhibit the liberality with which our citizens and others, have responded to the wants of the sick and wounded. They comprise articles sent both from Providence and Newport, to the care of Mr. James Wood one of the Hospitals Stewards, and distributed to the soldiers by himself, in person. Mr. Wood has been most indefatigable in his labors and possessed qualifications of rare value in his position.

Articles given from Newport: 541 Shirts, 287 Under do., 233 prs. Drawers, 437 prs. Socks, 48 Morning Gowns, 127 Coats, 127 prs. Slippers, 38 Vests, 41 Mattresses, 211 Comfortables, 310 Sheets, 54 Coffee Pots, 66 Water Pails, 71 Towels, 73 Blankets.

In addition to the above named articles Mr. Wood received and distributed from Messrs. Mason and Bradford of Newport: 36 Camp Bed Steeds, 15 Coffee Pots, 12 Wash Basins, 24 Water Pails, 41 Plates and Pans.

Mr. Wm. Brownell has also contributed a lot of his good furniture, and knives, and other articles. The old man 61 years of age, David Miller, whom we have spoken of before, having asked for a Bible, Mr. Mason sent him one, which Mr. Wood presented to him, having written the name of the donor and recipient on the fly leaf. Mr. James Seabury presented the old man with a pair of glasses to read with, and now the brave old man values his Bible more than all that has been given to him besides, and no doubt, whether he is permitted to regain his health, or shall be called upon to join the armies of Heaven, his true consolation will be derived from this desirable gift of the book of books.

The following articles were sent from Providence. Mr. Wm. C. being a Newport man, would of course, be more apt to receive articles in charge from Newport than Providence. The contract in the list, therefore, does not indicate that more articles were sent from Newport than from Providence, nor indeed do they comprise all that has been given from Newport. He expects to leave for Europe soon.

there being many others who who contributed and distributed in person.

- 112 Shirts, 103 Under do., 91 prs. Drawers, 49 prs. Socks, 11 Morning Gowns, 64 Coats, 27 prs. Slippers, 43 Vests, 18 Mattresses, 27 Comfortables, 31 Sheets, 46 Packages of Tea and Sugar, 141 Towels, 23 Blankets.

The Fund for Sick and Wounded Soldiers.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, New York, July 17, 1862. I acknowledge the receipt of the following sums, in aid of our sick and wounded soldiers, in addition to the amount previously acknowledged: $1515.85. Lieut. Simpson, U. S. N. Academy, 5.00. An old man, with very little property, 10.00. His four children, with less property, 8.00. A lady in a distant land, 10.00. A Trustee, 4.00. A Ward, by his Guardian, 2.00. $1551.85. More money will be most gratefully received; the demands upon me are incessant. WILLIAM H. CRANSTON, Mayor.

Court of Justices.

FRIDAY July, 18th. There was a case of assault and battery tried before this court this morning. A person chastised a boy for taking his horse and wagon and driving a long distance without leave. The horse was hard driven, and heated so much as to result probably in serious injury. The prosecution was great, although the injured party was guilty of violation of the law. But as the prosecution was great and the punishment not severe, the offending party was only fined ten cents and costs, by Judge Turner.

FOURTH REGIMENT.—By advices from Newport News this morning received, we learn that this Regiment is in a very unpleasant way. Disaffection is with two honorable (?) exceptions, openly and forcibly expressed, in the superceding by Col. Steers of Col. Ten. Fourteen officers—six Capt. and eight Lieutenants, have sent in a resignation, a copy of which is received and we must say that it is a severe castigation, and what is worse, is fully merited. We may publish a letter to-morrow.

STOLEN PROPERTY. We are requested by Deputy Sheriff Sente, to announce that he has now in his possession three harnesses—One rather indifferent and two superior ones, supposed to be stolen.

The owners can have them upon application to him, and proving property. STEAMER PERRY.—On and after Monday July 21st the steamer Perry will leave for Providence at 1.30 instead of 1.45. She continues to leave in the morning at 7 a.m. as heretofore—See Advertisement.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT.

Adjournment of Congress.

XXXVII CONGRESS—First Session. HOUSE—ADDITIONAL.—The bill passed—62 August 29. A joint resolution was passed suspending the sales of the Kansas, Sac and Fox Indians until the 4th of March next. A message from the President was received and read. He says he has approved of both the confessions bill and supplemental resolution, considering them both an act. Before he was informed of the passage of the resolution he had prepared a draft of veto message. As the bill does not touch the persons or property of local citizens it is just and proper. It is startling to say that Congress can free the slaves of a State, but as the rebels forfeit their slaves to the Government the question is whether they shall be declared free or be returned to slavery. He saw no objection to the former.

In reviewing other parts of the bill he says: Military commanders should seize and use whatever real or personal property may be necessary for their commands, but in some way preserve the evidence of such appropriations. He thinks it proper that military commanders should employ as many blacks as can be used to advantage.

Laid on the table and ordered to be printed. A message was received from the President recommending a suitable acknowledgment be made to Mr. Vanderbilt for his gift to the Government of the vessel of that name which has been and is now rendering valuable service.

Referred to the Naval Committee. A joint resolution, making appropriations for incidental expenses in the Indian Department, passed. A resolution passed providing that the pay of pension agents shall be two per cent. on the entire disbursements by any one of them, provided that the aggregate compensation does not exceed two thousand dollars per annum.

Mr. Walton moved that ten thousand copies of the President's message on confiscation be printed. A motion was made to lay it on the table. No quorum.

It being now twenty minutes to two, there was a call of the House. Proceedings were temporarily interrupted by a message from the Senate, that that body having completed their business, was now ready to adjourn. (Cries of "Go.") A committee was appointed, to join a similar one from the Senate, to wait on the President. The committee reported that the President had no further business to present to Congress. The Speaker said that the hour fixed for adjournment having arrived, I hereby declare the House adjourned sine die. Applause by members followed. A few minutes only elapsed before all the members had left the hall.

There are nearly six hundred transports and was steamers from Newport News and Hampton's River, besides almost innumerable small craft, among which are one to two hundred canal boats. Including the armed vessels recently arrived, the gunboat fleet numbers twenty-five vessels.

While the greatest number of the vessels of all classes at any one point are at Hampton's, at there are several squadrons comprising them, lie at anchor so closely together that it is difficult to pass through. This is for the purpose of protection from the rebels, who have laid batteries on the banks, and move them from point to point as our gunboats shall hem out.

General Burnside's fleet of transports and war vessels was lying off Newport News, near his command on the 11th, when the Haze passed. The men were all under tents; but their situation was such that they could be embarked at a few hours' notice. It was the prevailing opinion that under the orders of their gallant chief they would not long remain inactive.

There is much gratification throughout the army as well as the navy at Commodore Wilkes's appointment, and high expectations are entertained of the new commander. Already a better feeling exists. The prospect of more active service under a man of recognized ability and energy stimulates the officers; and the navy will soon be prepared to take an active part in the operations before Richmond.

The Monitor and Galena are among the vessels off Hampton's Bar. The movements of the Monitor are greatly admired. The improvements which have been made in her turret and machinery are quite obvious. The Galena was not so much injured in her fight with Fort Darling as was generally supposed.

The marks of some of the shot, however, are plainly visible on her side. One of the balls struck her plating, in which it is partially embedded; another went nearly through and broke, one-half of it falling off; a third passed into the wood-work, but not through the vessel. These marks of her fight remain. The damage to her upper deck plating has been repaired.

Both the iron-clad vessels made a reconnaissance upon the James river about the middle of last week, but its result is not reported.

The Burnside Bell.—One of the bells taken by Gen. Burnside has been purchased for the use of the Martha's Vineyard Camp Meeting. It came by Adams & Co.'s southern express to New York, by Earl & Co. to Providence, by Drake & Co. to Taunton, and by Hatch, Gray & Co. to this city, and is landed at Holmes Hole by Mayhew's Vineyard express to-day.—N.
